In 2013, our 14-year old son, David, decided that he wanted to run across the United States. My wife, Kris, and I supported his decision. I told David that I wanted our run to matter and to make a difference beyond our family. I was and continue to be passionately opposed to the agrochemical industry's takeover of the world's food supply. I asked David if he would mind if we ran on a GMO Free USA platform. He said okay.

In addition to training for our 3,000-mile, transcontinental run across the USA, I also wrote a book called We're Monsanto: Feeding the World, Lie After Lie. In my research, I had become familiar with two different movements: the movement to label GMOs, and the more-assertive, more-encompassing movement to ban them from the environment.

The Just Label It movement looked good at first glance, but upon deeper examination, I concluded otherwise. Virtually everything about the technology and implementation of genetic modification is based on theft and fraud.

Vandana Shiva travels the world speaking out against Monsanto and its affiliated profiteers as they steal, corrupt, and patent Nature's genetic heritage. Steven M. Druker, the Executive Director of the Alliance for BioIntegrity, and author of the seminal book Altered Genes, Twisted Truth: How the Venture to Genetically Engineer Our Food Has Subverted Science, Corrupted Government, and Systematically Deceived the Public, wrote, "The aggregate frauds that have been perpetrated on behalf of genetically engineered foods constitute by far the biggest fraud in the history of science."

It became clear to me that the call to label GMOs was a call to accept and legitimize the presence of GMOs in the environment, in the market, and in our bodies. Labeling GMOs might slow the pirating and contamination of the Earth's biodiversity, it might slow the destruction of traditional farming and the loss of livelihood to millions of peasant farmers, but in the end, all would be lost to thieves and fraudsters and their genetic pollution.

Labeling GMOs will not stop genetic contamination. Natural plants and GMOs cannot co-exist. If the spread of GMOs in the environment is not stopped, all plant life will at minimum be corrupted and privatized, per Monsanto's strategic plan, but more realistically, it will be permanently destroyed.

This issue is intensely spiritual for me. Forces far more powerful and intelligent than mere human beings created and sustain life on Earth. We may have the know-how to crudely and inaccurately combine DNA from different species, but we have no right to do so. We have no means to control or even predict the outcome of these ruinous experiments. It is arrogant and naive to believe otherwise.

More important than labeling GMOs, we need to label the criminals who ravage, pillage, enslave, and exploit the world's genetic heritage. We need to expose their fraud, enact laws to stop their crimes, bring them to justice, and hold them both legally and financially responsible for "the biggest fraud in the history of science."

Due to these facts, my son and I aligned ourselves with the organization known as GMO Free USA, and in 2014, we ran across the country on a GMO Free USA platform. We passed out some 3,000 seed packets labeled GMO Free USA, averaging about one packet per mile.

Other than a handful of people who thought we were misguided, everyone we met supported our mission. No one wants to eat poison whether that poison is sprayed on their food or manufactured within the genes of their food.

While running, we met several parents of children suffering from autism—a modern phenomenon that has exploded with the explosion of genetically modified foods, their accompanying poisons, and the vaccine schedule. I knew enough at the time to ask them if they thought vaccines had anything to do with their children's condition and suffering. To the best of my recollection, one parent said no, and the others said yes. Their children regressed after vaccination.

In August 2014, one month after we had completed our run, Dr. William Thompson, a senior CDC scientist, went public with the news that he and his colleagues had committed scientific fraud to hide the increased risk of autism for children who received the MMR vaccine on the CDC schedule.

Thompson's whistleblowing was big news. Very big news. Unless you follow the mainstream media, where it received little to no mention. This mainstream media blackout piqued my interest. How deep did the corruption run? Was the vaccine industry no better than the biotech industry, complete with a government-pharmaceutical revolving door, fraudulent science, bribes, threats against and intimidation of dissenting scientists, tainted educational curricula, industry P.R. machines pretending to be media, etc.?

I needed to know the answers. I was about to become a grandparent and I was concerned. No, not concerned. I was scared—scared of yet another industry willing to lie and willing to hurt my posterity for economic gain.

Since that historic day when Thompson stepped out of the shadow of the CDC, I've immersed myself in the study of vaccines. Once again, I've immersed myself in the study of corruption. My research resulted in the 2016 publication of my book Jabbed: How the Vaccine Industry, Medical Establishment, and Government Stick It to You and Your Family, a book described as an almost encyclopedic study of vaccines and vaccine industry corruption. In 2018, Skyhorse Publishing published an updated edition in hardcover which is selling better now than ever.

There are parallels between the agrochemical and vaccine industries. Both industries tout their patented genetically modified products as the latest and greatest way to save humanity. Both make the fraudulent claim that their products are safe. And just as scientists can't possibly predict the consequences that will result as genetically modified life forms are released into the environment, neither can scientists predict the consequences that will result as vaccines containing male and female human DNA, animal DNA, disease antigens, retroviruses, carcinogens, contaminants, genetically modified ingredients, etc., are injected into our bodies, especially the bodies of babies developing within their mothers' wombs or newborn infants.

Next-generation vaccines are intended to alter the human genome, which is something that no human being, corporation, or government has the right to do. This is a planned and purposeful crime against humanity, one we cannot permit to happen.

It's true that many GMOs activists don't understand the issues with vaccines. It's also true that many vaccine-informed activists don't fully understand the issues with vaccines. Vaccine industry "safety" studies are designed to intentionally injure and kill babies and children in toxic "placebo" groups to prove that toxic liability-free vaccines in test groups do not injure and kill babies and children. Indeed, without vaccine-induced injuries and deaths, new vaccines could not be brought to market. And because of vaccine-induced injuries, countless individuals become lifelong customers of the same industries that harmed them.

Vaccine-induced injuries and deaths are a trillion-dollar commodity.

Upon the foundation of dead and injured babies and children, the Unholy Trinity—the vaccine industry, medical establishment, and government—proclaims the unholy edict: "Vaccines are safe and effective." And it's doing everything within its power to mandate and force vaccinate the growing number of vaccine-informed people, most of whom are parents of vaccine-injured and killed babies and children. The same murderers and liars are now developing vaccines that will genetically modify human DNA and the human genome. These too will be pronounced safe, effective, and necessary and will be added to the mandated and forced schedule.

Unless we stop them.

Just as labeling GMOs is crucial but insufficient, protecting and strengthening vaccine exemptions is crucial, but insufficient. Advocating for free choice and informed consent for products that are brought to market by means of fraud and treachery is crucial, but insufficient. Repealing the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act (NCVIA) is crucial, but is also unacceptably insufficient, as it would not address the problem that improperly-studied, unethically-approved vaccines are still on the market and in use.

When the world learned of Nazi Germany's Holocaust, enlightened people did not call for choice, they did not call for informed consent, they did not beg and plead with the Nazis for exemptions. Likewise, vaccine-induced injury and death is a Holocaust of global scale that has long since eclipsed the horrors of World War II, and as such, it deserves our immediate attention and uncompromising action!

In our desperate attempt to co-exist with the Unholy Trinity, we legitimize the massive and denied decimation and killings by vaccinations. We legitimize fraud, coercion, corruption, and extortion. We consign ourselves to a never-ending battle against a cabal that cares nothing for our Constitutionally-guaranteed rights or for our children. We consign our human family to chronic illness, disease, disability, diminished functioning, and untold suffering caused by womb to tomb poisonous injections. By doing so, we may be among the last of our species who are fully male, female, or even human. By doing so, we buy into the government's false narrative that despite the fact that vaccines are legally defined as being "unavoidably unsafe", they are still necessary. The new, needed, and accurate narrative is that vaccine-induced injury and death is 100% avoidable. We simply need to free our minds and our bodies from the grasp of vaccine industry tyrants, bring the perpetrators to justice, and put an end to the vaccine empire and the Global Vaccine Holocaust.

The world's greatest defensive team and tactics will not win this battle. We must go on the offensive, starting with the task of freeing the minds of our loved ones from the hypnotic power of the word "vaccine." If we're going to use the word at all, we must use it accurately. Vaccines are dangerous. Vaccines are toxic. Vaccines injure, damage, and kill. Vaccines impair fertility. Vaccines cause brain inflammation resulting in various neurological disorders including autism. Vaccines lower I.Q. Vaccines cause depression, anxiety, obsessive and behavioral disorders, etc.

It is part of the false narrative to say that we need more studies to determine if the ingredients in vaccines cause these issues, because several vaccine ingredients are already known and classified as poisons, toxins, neurotoxins, carcinogens, immune and nervous system disruptors, fertility inhibitors, and sterilizing agents. Vaccines also include an ingredient used specifically to maximize penetration of the brain and individual cells. This is admitted, purposeful, and irreparable damage at a cellular level...and it is a crime.

Just as enlightened GMO activists call for a GMO Free USA/Canada/World, it is time for enlightened vaccine-informed activists to call for a Vaccine Free USA and for a Vaccine Free World. Anything less is complicity with the ongoing and increasing Vaccine Holocaust. Anything less may well be a death sentence to what is now known as the human race. Co-existence is not an option. Those who are calling the shots, whoever they are and whatever their motives may be, know this to be true. We need to accept and act upon this reality as well.

The future of the Earth, the environment, and humanity hang in the balance.
